

Because children spend a long time bending forward during golf practice, they need to stretch to avoid injuries. This is an example of a stretch which promotes good posture. Encourage them to do this one and others before, during and after golf.

This is called the stick'em up stretches. See if you can get your back flat on the wall like Tim and Kate.